

greta fisler

singer, songwriter

greta fisler is an art-pop singer-songwriter and classically trained guitarist currently based in lausanne. born and raised in quiet valposchiavo, she pursued her studies in milan, italy. she has performed in prestigious venues and festivals between northern italy and southern switzerland, such as triennale di milano, pinacoteca di brera, forum paracelsus in st. moritz, pactasoundzone, chesa planta in samedan.

in july 2025 she released her self-produced debut album ephemera.

with early roots in the rural, naked sound of classical guitar – and forever mesmerized by its ancestral dimension – her work merges intimate poetics into fragile yet mellow textures, both nostalgic and new.

ephemera

greta's debut album ephemera almost appears as an urge to wallow in the transience of very small instants. the songs were written over a few years and finally gathered in the intimate poetry of this record, which also unfolded into a personal exploration of sounds. nostalgic, quite rudimental guitar sonorities merge with magnetic synthesizers and delicate instrumental textures, featuring ran livneh on basses, bianca watts on harp, matteo montaldi on marimba and giovanni martinelli on classical guitar. beside original songs, ephemera includes serenata indiana by kevin swierkosz-lenart and an arrangement of 16th century's chanson mille regretz.
